No. 38 Wilham-st., (Merchants' Exchange) in the city of New York, within twenty days after the service hereof, exchasive of the day of such service: and if you fail to answer the said complaint within the time aforemad, the plaintiff in this action will take judgment against you for the sum of one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars, with interest from the fifth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, besides the cost of this action.—Dated 25th July, 1851.

REO, A. HALSEY.

Plaintiff's Attorney.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

SUPERIOR COURT OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

Defendant. Complant.

The compiant of the above named plaintiff respectfully shows to this Court that said plaintiff, on the —day of June. one thousand eight hundred and fifty, was specially requested by the defendant to call at the residence of said defendant, in Twenty-first-st., near Fifth-avenue, in the said City of New-York, on the evening of the said day, for the purpose of consultation in regard to the business of the defendant, and for the purpose of making an engagement with the defendant, for the composing and writing (by the plaintiff) of certain articles or pieces on the subject of the controversy between said defendant and Horace H. Day, in regard to the several claims of Charles Goodyear and the said Day, to the patent rights of sundry inventions connected with the use of India Rubber in various manufactures.

And plaintiff further says, according to the said request of the defendant in the evening of the said request of the defendant on the evening of the said residence of defendant on the evening of the said—of June, and was there requested by the defendant, to undertake the work of writing such articles, in defense of the defendant and said Charles Goodyear, as should be required for the exposure of the alleged false pretensions of said incrace H. Day, and the plaintiff consented to undertake the work of such writing under a promise from the defendant requested the plaintiff to call frequently at the defendant of the proposed articles, and office, for the purpose of consultation in regard to the subject, form and style of the proposed articles and office, for the purpose of consultation in regard to the subject, form and style of the proposed articles and office, for the purpose of consultation in regard to the subject, form and style of the proposed articles and office, for the purpose of consultation in regard to the subject, form and style of the proposed articles and office, for the purpose of consultation in regard to the subject, form and style of t character of the compositions descree from the passe iff by the defendant.

And the defendant then narrated to the plaintiff in the said statements, a long and particular account of the defendant's controversies and litigation with Horace H. Day, about certain patent rights, and con-tracts, which were alleged to have been infringed and violated by the said Day, of which patsat right the defendant claimed to be the proprietor, jointly with Charles Goodyear and some other person or becomes persons.

And the defendant often assured the plaintiff that the said Horace H. Day, was a very bad, dishonest, mendacious and artivi man, who, by misrepresentations, published in the newspapers, had succeeded in creating a very general false impression in the public mind, as to the character and history of the claims of the said Charles H. Day and others, and of the said Charles H. Day and others, to certain inventions of modes and processes of manufacturing various products and fabries of India rubber.

And the defendant also stated to the plaintiff, that, And the defendant also stated to the plaintiff, that, in consequence of the erroneous opinions thus circulated, it was difficult to obtain a fair and unbiassed Jury for the trial of the patent cases then in hitgation between the said Goodyear and the said Day, and that it was necessary to disabuse the public mind of the said false impressions, and to set forth the true history of the said inventions and patents, and of the lawsuits therewith connected, in a series of counter publications in the newspapers, to the intent that juries might not be influenced by the one-sided statements and perversions industriously produced, published and widely disseminated by the said Horace H. Day.

neets and perversions industriously produces, pushed and widely disseminated by the said Horace H. Day.

And the defendant at the same time admitted to the planniff that the defendant, and other persons employed by defendant or associated and interested with him, had composed and published many articles in reply to the before-mentioned articles of Horace H. Day, but without satisfactory effect, and that the defendant, and those who were associated or interested with him, believed it desirable and necessary to employ some writer of experience and ability to study the subject of these inventions and the attend ant litigations, and to prepare and compose statements of the facts in contradiction of the statements published by the said Horace H. Day.

And the defendant then proposed to the plaintiff (as being, in the defendant's opinion, a writer of much experience in historical and composers and amount and presentation of the facts that the case would admit, that he should undertake the labor of conducting the whole public controversy in the newspapers on behalf of the defendant and of said Goodyear, and of other and all persons associated with the defendant or represented by him, or interested with him in defending or prosecuting suits at law against Horace H. Day, and of persons interested in maintaining the existing patent laws of the United States against the alteration proposed by the said Horace H. Day and others.

And the defendant assured the plaintiff that the others.

And the defendant assured the plaintiff that the defendant had under his control, or at his disposal for And the defendant assured the plaintiff that the defendant had under his control, or at his disposal for the purposes just mentioned, a large amount of money contributed by persons interested in maintaining various existing patents, which money was denominated by the defandant the "Patentees Fund," and that the plaintiff should receive, in compensation for his writings and other services by him rendered to the defendant, prompt and liberal payments proportioned to the time, study and labor by him bestowed upon the business of the defendant, and defendant's associates in defending the before mentioned patent rights and claims and interests of the defendant, and Charles Goodyear and others against the alleged pretensions of Herace it. Day and others, and proportioned also to the skill and experience acquired by the plaintiff in controversial writing and publication, and in other work of a similar character.

And in consideration of the liberal compensation so promised, the plaintiff agreed and engaged to execute all work in writing, study and investigation which might be required by the defendant and those associated and interested with him in lingations and other controversies with Horace H. Day, as aforesaid.

And the plaintiff also in consideration of the compensation promised by the defendant, agreed to hold his time and labor at the disposal of the the defendant, to go at short notice to Massachusetts, or to the City of Washington, or elsewhere, to any reasonable distance if it should be for the interest of the defendant or of the patentees and manufacturers who were interested in various litigations against Horace H. Day.

And the defendant at the meetings and consulta-

H. Day.

And the defendant at the meetings and consulta-

And the defendant at the meetings and consultations with the plaintiff as aforesaid, requested the plaintiff to write an account of certains transactions at Great Barrington, in the State of Massachusetts, on the fourth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, as stated by the defendant to the purport following:

That the defendant, knowing that Horace H. Day was on that day at Great Barrington aforesaid, participating in the celebration of the day with the residents of that place, (the same being the place of the nativity of the said Day) had selected that day and occasion, to commence sait against the said Day, by an attachment of his property and person for certain alleged infringements of Charles Goodyear and for certain alleged breaches of contract with Charles Goodyear, and had caused the Deputy Marshal of the United States to serve the writs of attachment

Goodwear, and had caused the Deputy Marshal of the United States to serve the writs of attachment upon the said Day in the public streets of Great Barrington aforesaid, with a view to his special inconvenience and great annoyance, while in the presence of friends and acquaintances and of others engaged in the celebration of the day.

And the plaintiff, in conformity with the request and information communicated to him by the defendant, thereupon wrote a narrative of the transactions just mentioned, and of various other incidents connected therewith, which narrative he presented to the defendant, who then requested the plaintiff to alter the marrative by suppressing some statements previously made by the defendant in his instructions to the plaintiff, and by inserting other statements not previously given, so as to make it less favorable to Horace if Day and more severe against him.

And thereupon the plaintiff wrote a new narrative of the aforesaid transactions at Great Barrington, conformably to the new instructions and statements of the defendant, which narrative was duly presented by the plaintiff to the defendant, and was accepted by the glantiff to the defendant, and was accepted by the defendant and by how deciraced to example to the com-

of the defendant, which narrative was duly presented by the plaintiff to the defendant, and was accepted by the defendant, and by him declared to be completely satisfactory.

And the plaintiff in the months of July, August, and September. in said year one thousand eight hundred and fifty was further engaged and employed by the defendant, at numerous consultations and meetings at the defendant, office aforesaid, and at the defendant's aforesaid residence, all with sole reference to the business of the defendant, as connected with his litigations against Horace H. Day. And the plaintiff by request and appointment of the defendant, made not less than twenty visits to the defendant at his aforesaid residence and office, in attendance to the said business of the defendant during the three months last aforesaid.

And in the beginning of the month of September journey to Great Barrington aforesaid, at a day's no-tice, for the purpose of ascertaining certain facts in-volved in the controversies and litigations between Horace if Day, and the claimints of certain patent rights, and between Horace if Day and a corpora-tion or associasien of individuals in Massachusetts, known as the "Berkshire Woolen Company."

known as the "Berkshire Woolen Company."

And the plaintiff did accordingly prepare himself for the journey and old hold himself in reathless to go as requested at a day's notice.

And the plaintiff on the day of September, in the year last aforeand late in the afternoon, received a note from the defendant in the defendant's own hand-writing requesting the plaintiff to leave town for Great Barrington immediately, as plaintiff is services were especially required at said place by the defendant, and those associated with him as aforesaid.

services were especially required with him as aforesaid.

And the plaintiff not being able to leave his residence in the City of New-York in the morning, of so few hour's solice, departed in the afferneon of the next day, after the receipt of the note, and arrived at Great Barrington aforesaid, late in the same night, and then and there met the defendant at the Hotel called the "Beckshire House," on the Register of which Hotel the plaintiff wrote his name as "D. F.
Bacon, New-York."

And the defendant ascertaining that the plaintiff had so written his name, went to the said Register and altered the plaintiff's name as written by the plaintiff on the said Register, so as to make it appear to be some other name than Bacon. And the plaintiff being informed by the defendant of the said alteration, examined the said Register, and finding that his signature had been thus changed, rewrote the altered letters, and obliterated the marks made by the defendant on the absurdity of thus presenting him as an object of suspicion to those who had already seen his name as written by humself, and might impute the subsequent attempted falsification to some bad motive on his part, as if he were a criminal seeking to disguise himself.

And the defendant stated to the plaintiff that he

And the defendant stated to the plaintiff that he feared that some of the arents or friends of Horace H. Day in the village of Great Barrington might discover from the Register that the plaintiff was in the said village, in company with the defendant, and might thence infer that the plaintiff was employed by the defendant to write in his defense against the said Day and the defendant had several private interviews and consultations with the plaintiff, at the controllage of Great Barrington, concerning the barriers with a several provider.

And the detendant on the next day, to wit, on the — day of September, in the year last aforesaid, departed on his return to the City of New-York, and requested the plaintiff to remain in the village of Great Harrington for the purpose of studying the localities in connection with the confroversies and law-suits in which the defendant and the Berkshire Woolen Company and others were parties, against Horace H. Day
And the plaintiff day, and the parties of the plaintiff day.

Woolen Company and others were parties, against Horace H. Day.

And the plaintiff did a coordingly so remain in the said village and did wholly devote himself to the business of the defendant, having no other purpose in going to said village.

And the plaintiff in pursuance to the instructions of the defendant did visit and examine the works of the Berkshire Woolen Company in the said village, and the dam and water power belonging to the said Company, especially in relation to another dam constructed a little below on the same streamby Horace H. Day, in consequence of which it was alleged by the defendant, the dam and water-works of the said Company had been greatly injured, and controversies and litigations had resulted between the said Company and the said Day.

Company had been greatly injured, and controversies and httgstions had resulted between the said Company and the said Day.

And the plaintiff did, under instructions from the defendant, visit various localities in and near the said village, in order to prepare himself to write descriptions of the places with which various incidents connected with the controversies and disputes between Day other parties before mentioned.

And the plaintiff their returned to the City of New-York on Monday, the ——day of September, and announced his return at the defendant's office, and signified to the detendant that he was ready to furnish the proposed written articles, whenever they should be called for.

And the plaintiff occupied himself with the pre-

be called for

And the piantiff occupied himself with the preparation and consideration of the facts for the composition of such articles or arguments upon them, as might be required by the defendant.

And during the months of September, October, November and December in said year one thousand eight hundred and lifty the plaintiff, at the request of the defendant, continued to call at the aforesaid residence and office of the defendant, for consultation in regard to the business of the defendant, and to collect and receive information in regard to the movelect and receive information in regard to the move-ments of Horace H. Day, and to be prepared to de-fend the interests and alleged rights of the detendant, and of those associated with him, when attacked by

And during the four last aforesaid months, the number of visits and consultations thus make by the plaint of visits and consultations thus make by the plaint of the defendant, and at his request as aforesaid, was not less than fifteen.

And the plaintiff being urged by the defendant to come more frequently to the said office of said defendant, represented to the defendant that on account of the public and conspicuous character of the place 98 Broadway, the secresy desired by the defendant in regard to the employment and association of the plaintiff with the defendant might fail to be preserved, and plaintiff, therefore, suggested to the defendant that for the purpose of maintaining such secresy it would be better that the necessary interviews and consultations should take place either at the private office of the plaintiff, or at the residence of the defendant, to the propriety of which suggestion the defendant assented, and appointed interviews with the plaintiff at the defendant saforesaid residence.

And the plaintiff duly attended in fulfilment of such

And the plaintiff duly attended in fulfilment of such And the plaintiff duly attended in fulfilment of such appointments, and being again requested by the defendant to meet him at 98 Broadway, the plaintiff renewed his attendances at the said office of the defendant, and continued them by appointment and request of the defendant, during the months of January and February, one thousand eight hundred and fifty one, the number of such attendances during the said two months being not less than twenty.

And the defendant also called in the month of said two months being not less than twenty.

And the defendant also called in the month of February at the office of the plaintiff, at No. 24 East Fourteenth-st., in said City of New-York, and consulted the plaintiff in regard to the said business of the defendant, and called repeatedly at the said office of the plaintiff for the said purpose, and for no other purpose whatever.

the defendant, and called repeatedly at the said office of the plaintiff for the said purpose, and for no other purpose whatever.

And in the month of January, one thousand eight hundred and fifty one, the defendant informed the plaintiff that the aforesaid Horace H. Day was then in the City of Washington, endeavoring to procure the passage of a bid in Congress to after the patent laws of the United States in such a manner as to injure very materially the interests of the defendant and of Charles Goodyear, and other inventors and patentees associated with the defendant or represented by the detendant, and employing him to defend their alleged rights and interests. And the defendant requested the plaintiff to hold limiself in readiness to go to the City of Washington to attend on the sessions of Congress when it should be necessary, in order to counteract the pretended machinations of the said Horace H. Day, and prevent the passage of the said bid in Congress.

And the plaintiff agreed to go to Washington whenever the defendant should so require during the sitting of Congress then in existence.

And the defendant agreed to give the plaintiff due notice of such necessity.

And the defendant in said month of January, remested the plaintiff to write certain articles for pub-

the sitting of Congress then in existence.

And the defendant agreed to give the plaintiff due notice of such necessity.

And the defendant in said month of January, requested the plaintiff to write certain articles for publication in the newspapers, setting forth to the publication in the newspapers, setting forth to the public the injustice of the course of florace it. Day, in denying the exclusive right of Charles Goodyear to certain modes of preparing and manufacturing India Rubber. And also setting forth the alleged great losses and grievances that would be caused to meritorious inventors and patentees by the passage of the aforesaid bill in Congress for the alteration of the Patent Laws of the United States.

And the plaintiff, in pursuance of such instructions, did compose and write a series of articles for the defendant, and furnished them to the defendant, who accepted them and pronounced them to be complete and satisfactory.

And the defendant, on the —— day of February, in said year one thousand eight hundred and fifty one, placed a note in the plaintiff's office, requesting the plaintiff's attendance at the defendant's office.

And the plaintiff, on the receipt of the said ague from the defendant, and on the said —— day of February, he, plaintiff, called at the office of the defendant at all 8 Broadway aforesaid, and found the defendant in a state of great alarm and anxiety on account of information received by him of the danger of the Patent Laws, it being reported to the defendant that there was a majority in both Houses of Congress in favor of the passage of the bill aforesaid, and that the Senate Committee on Patents (Hon Hopkins L. Turney), was about to call up the said bill and obtain its immediate passage through the Senate.

The defendant at the interview with the plaintiff on the day last afforesaid, declared and affirmed to the plaintiff that this danger of the passage of the said Hon. Hopkins L. Turney should move to take it up.

And the defendant requested the plaintiff to write a lelter

And thereupon the plaintiff wrote a new narrative of the aforesaid transactions at Great Barrington, conformably to the new instructions and statements of the defendant, which narrative was duly presented by the plaintiff to the defendant, and was accepted by the plaintiff to the defendant, and was accepted by the plaintiff in the months of July, August, and September, in said year one thousand eight hundred and fifty was further engaged and employed by the defendant, at numerous consultations and meetings at the defendant of the defendant as connected with his intigations against Horace H. Day. And the plaintiff to be friends of the aforesaid Senator and were believed by the defendant as connected with his intigations against Horace H. Day. And the plaintiff to be friends of the aforesaid Senator, and were believed by the defendant to have the confidence of the said business of the defendant at make in any such case on full information and due deliberation. And in the beginning of the month of September in the year last aforesaid, the defendant requested the plaintiff to write a lelter to a distinguished and infuential Senator in Congress, soliciting the said Senator in Congress, soliciting the side of centary to oppose hasty action on the said bill, and requested the plaintiff to sign his own name to the proposed letter, and to obtain the signatures of certain friends of the plaintiff to be friends of the aforesaid. Senator in Congress, soliciting the said Senator in Congress, soliciting the said Senator in Congress, soliciting the said to constitute to the proposed letter, and to obtain the signatures of certain friends of the plaintiff to spin the care to the said business of the defendant, as connected with his integration against Horace H. Day. And the plaintiff to spin the care to the said business of the defendant in a secondary to the defendant to have the confidence of the said business of the defendant to inform him of the facts which they might make in say such case on full information and due delib

sect, which said documents the plaintiff perused and studied with all due and proper diagence to the neglect of plaintiff's other easis of bisiness. As it the plaintiff being requested to attend duity at the defendant's office to be informed of any new facts presenting, or any new suggestions occurring to the mind of the defendant in regard to the proposed bill, and its expected injurious operations on the interests of merchanous inventors and rightful patentiess and proprietors of patents, did so attend at defendant's office from day to day, and held long and omnerous consultations with the defendant for the purpose of obtaining such information as would enable the plaintiff to "make a strong case" for the defendant in the plaintiff's proposed communication to the aforesaid distinguished Seniator in Congress and in the communication which he was requested by the defendant to make to such other Seniators, and such Representatives in Congress as might be influenced by such arguments as the plaintiff, thus nostructed, might make to them.

And the plaintiff after receiving such instructions in the law points of the case, as the defendant could furnish, was, by the defendant, requested to go with the defendant to the office of Seth P. Staples, Esq. Counsel learned in the law, (especially in the law of extents), and retained as such in defence of said defendant William Jurison, against the said Horace H. Day.

And the said plaintiff Bacon did, according to the request of the said defendant Judson, go with the said defendant to the office of the said Staples, and was then and there by the said Staples further and extensively indostrinated as to the alleged merits of the case of Charles Goodyear, and other inventors and patentees interested with the said Goodyear, and with the said defendant Judson, against the said Day, and as to the alleged demerits of the case of the said thorace H. Day, as against the said Goodyear, the said defendant Judson, and the said other patentees and other propeletors of patents associated with the said defendant Judson.

And the plaintiff did at the place and time last aforesaid, receive from the said Staples, a draft or form of a letter to a distinguished Senator in congress concerning the aforesaid bill for the illeration of the patent have of the United States, with a special request from the said Staples, and from the said decidant in this action, that the plaintiff would peruse and revise the said draft or form, and correct and endarse it, so as to make it most effectual to its purpose of consumeing the said Senator, and through him the Senate of the United States, of the alleged injustice and impolicy of passing the aforesaid hill for the alteration of the Fatent Laws of the United States.

And the plaintiff took the smill draft or form of let-

And the plaintiff in the aforesaid month of February was requested by the defendant to go to the city of Washington, within a few days, to counters it is alleged machinations of the aforesaid Horace H. Bay, and to prevent, if possible, the passage of the aforesaid bill for the alteration of the Patent Laws of the United States.

And the plaintiff consented to go, and prepared himself to go to the city of Washington aforesaid, for the purpose last above named, on any day and at any hour, which the defendant might name and appoint for the plaintiff being requested by the defendant to communicate any information in his possession as to the prospect or probability of the passage of the said bill, or any such bill, in Congress, stated to the defendant that it would be impossible to take up the bill in the Senate and pass it through Congress at so late a period of the session, (which must terminate in ington to communicate with him by telegraph on the instant of the taking up of the suid bill in the Senate, and that the defendant expocted the plaintiff to go to Washington by the next train after the receipt of such communication by telegraph from Washington. And the defendant's said office until the receipt of said telegraphic communication, or until the receipt of said telegraphic communication, or until the close of the session of the third of March.

And the plaintiff did so attend daily at the office of the defendant until the third day of March, in said year, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, to the neglect of plaintiff so there business.

And the plaintiff, at the request of the defendant, on or about the —— day of said February, undertook the revision and correction of a certain writing or composition of the defendant, designed for publication, and afterward published by the defendant in the public newspapers.

public newspapers
And the plantuff carefully perused the said composition of the defendant, and revised and corrected its errors of grammar, thetoric and punctuation, and reduced it to an intelligible form, suitable for publication.

And the defendant assured the plaintill that he wis-paying and would pay him liberally for such services as are hereinbetore mentioned, and that he had paid one of the correspondents of newspapers at Wash-ington whose name he mentioned to plaintiff one thousand five hundred dollars for favorably mention-ing the claims of Goodyear, and others associated with him in his letters, and for advocating the cause of the opponents of the aforessid bill at Washington. And the defendant also stated in the presence and hearing of the plaintiff, while the plaintiff was wri-ting a piece or article for the defendant, that the de-fendant had expended the sum of five thousant dol-ting a piece or article for the detendant.) that the defendant had expended the sum of five thousand dollars at the City of Washinston, during the session ending on the third of March now last nast, in and about the business of maintaining the alleged claim of Goodyear and other inventors, and in resisting the operations of Horace H. Day and other advocates and friends of the aforesad bill.

And plaintiff arefress that the said services so rendered by him to defendant, and at his request as aforesaid, were reasonably worth the sum of one thousand seven hundred and fifty dollars, and that said defendant on or about the — day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, specially undertock and promises to pay the said sum of money

defendant for said sum of one thousand seven huadred and fifty dollars, with interest thereon from the fifth day of April, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-one, and the costs of this action.
